
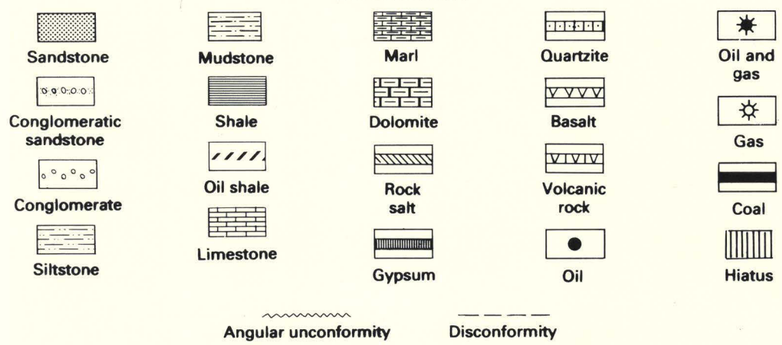
[1] Member
[2] Reference cited
[3] Thickness in meters

EXPLANATION



REFERENCES CITED

(1) Chinese Academy of Geological Sciences, 1982, An outline of the stratigraphy in China: Beijing, China, Geological Publishing House, v. 1, 445 p. [in Chinese with English abstract].

(2) Hao Shihsheng and Zhang Changgen, 1984, The primary hydrocarbon characteristics of the Middle-Upper Proterozoic in the northern part of North China: Beijing Petroleum Symposium, September, 1984, 31 p. [reprint].

(3) Institute of Geology, Academia Sinica, 1958, Regional stratigraphy of China, Supplement: Beijing, China, Science Press, 190 p. [in Chinese].

(4) Fei Qi and Wang Xie-Pei, 1984, Significant role of structural fractures in Renqiu buried-hill oil field in eastern China: American Association of Petroleum Geologists Bulletin, v. 68, no. 8, p. 971–982.

(5) Regional Stratigraphic Editorial Section of the Hebei Province and Tianjin Region, 1979a, Stratigraphy of the Hebei Sheng and Tianjin Shi: Beijing, China, Geological Publishing House, Regional stratigraphic tables of North China, v. 1, 312 p. [in Chinese].

(6) Regional Stratigraphic Editorial Section of the Hebei Province and Tianjin Region, 1979b, Stratigraphy of the Hebei Sheng and Tianjin Shi: Beijing, China, Geological Publishing House, Regional stratigraphic tables of North China, v. 2, 228 p. [in Chinese].

(7) Scientific Research Institute of Petroleum Exploration and Development, Ministry of Petroleum Industry and Institute of Geology and Paleontology, Academia Sinica, 1978, Early Tertiary gastropod fossils from coastal region of Bohai: Beijing, China, Science Press, 33 pls., 157 p. [in Chinese with English summary].

(8) Zha Quanheng, 1984, Jizhong depression, China—Its geologic framework, evolutionary history, and distribution of hydrocarbons: American Association of Petroleum Geologists Bulletin, v. 68, no. 8, p. 983–992.

(9) Zhongyuan Petroleum Exploration Bureau, 1980, Structural outline map of the Dongpu depression: Puyang, Henan, Zhongyuan Petroleum Exploration Bureau, one sheet with composite columnar stratigraphic section, scale 1:200,000 [in Chinese].

BEDROCK STRATIGRAPHY IN THE PRINCIPAL DEPRESSIONS OF THE NORTH CHINA BASIN, EASTERN CHINA