DRAINAGE AREAS OF SELECTED SITES ON STREAMS IN NORTH CAROLINA

By Robert L. Meikle

ABSTRACT

Drainage areas and locations of approximately 12,400 selected sites on streams in North Carolina are contained in this report. Data are not provided for a large part of the Coastal Plain Province. Location information provided for each site includes distance to nearby towns or other landmarks, latitude and longitude coordinates, county in which the site lies and the name of the latest topographic map on which the site is located. The drainage area of each site is given in square miles. Drainage area values provided for sites listed in this report, supersede all previous values published by the U.S. Geological Survey.

INTRODUCTION

A drainage basin is the land area contributing surface runoff to a specified stream system. The size of a drainage basin, or drainage area, is an important basin characteristic that is used in various types of hydrologic studies and analyses. For example, drainage area has been used successfully in the development of regional relations for estimating statistical flow data for sites where streamflow records are not available. Drainage area data are therefore important to consultants, industry, and local, State, and Federal agencies responsible for the design and management of water supplies, determination of waste-water releases, and other hydrologic evaluations.

The U.S. Geological Survey and the Tennessee Valley Authority determine drainage areas for selected sites on streams in North Carolina. The Tennessee Valley Authority determines drainage areas for streams within the Tennessee River basin and the Geological Survey determines areas for remaining basins in the state. This report is to provide a summary of all drainage area data, as determined by the U.S. Geological Survey and the Tennessee Valley Authority, for sites on streams in North Carolina. A previous publication of drainage areas for North Carolina (Walker, 1965) contains information for about 5,100 sites. This report contains information for more than 12,400 sites. Drainage area values provided for sites listed in this report, supersede all values previously published by the U.S. Geological Survey.

Drainage area data are not provided for a large part of eastern North Carolina (fig. 1). The excluded area is in the Coastal Plain Province and includes many coastal wetland areas. Topographic relief in the excluded area is extremely mild; changes in land surface elevations of less than a foot per mile are not uncommon. Topographic maps of the excluded area generally have land-surface contours shown for 5 to 10 foot changes in elevation; therefore, accurate delineation of basin boundaries, in many parts of the excluded area, is difficult. In addition, many of the maps for the excluded area were prepared prior to 1940 and may not reflect current drainage patterns due to recent development. However, drainage areas for selected sites in the area excluded may be found in Walker (1965).

The report was prepared in cooperation with the North Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Community Development. Drainage areas and location information for stream sites located in the Tennessee River basin were determined by the Hydraulic Data Branch of the Tennessee Valley Authority, Knoxville, Tennessee.

COMPUTATIONAL PROCEDURE

Drainage area data provided in this report were determined in accordance with the guidelines of the Federal Interagency River Basin Committee (1951). The standards and methods for determining basin boundaries and site location coordinates are also described by the Federal Interagency River Basin Committee (1957). Computation of a drainage area for a specific site requires a delineation of the basin boundary on the most current and accurate topographic map available. The basin area is determined by planimeter, an instrument that computes the size of irregular shaped areas. Drainage areas of large basins included on several maps are determined by summing incremental areas from each map. The topographic maps used for determining drainage areas in this report are on file in the U.S. Geological Survey District Office located in Raleigh, N.C.

ORGANIZATION OF DATA

Streams in North Carolina are classified under a system of numeric hydrologic unit codes as shown in figure 2. The identification system was developed jointly by the U.S. Water Resources Council and the U.S. Geological Survey for use as a standard geographical reference by agencies concerned with water and land resources planning (U.S. Geological Survey, 1974). Identification of the hydrologic unit codes applicable to major streams in North Carolina is given in table 1. The 8-digit code is composed of four 2-digit site codes indicating region, subregion, accounting unit and cataloging unit. The format of a hydrologic unit code is illustrated by the following example:

Note--The river basins are arrangea according to the station downstream order number in the tabular data.

North Carolina lies in part of three hydrologic regions (03, 05, and 06). Eastern slope streams draining to the Atlantic Ocean are in region 03. Western slope streams draining to the Ohio River are in region 05, and those draining to the Tennessee River are in region 06. The Neuse and Tar River basins in eastern North Carolina, for example, comprise a subregion (fig. 2) with each basin an accounting unit. A major tributary to one of these streams is a cataloging unit.

The South Atlantic - Gulf Region include the major stream systems: Chowan and Roanoke Rivers, Neuse and Pamlico Rivers, Cape Fear River, Pee Dee River, Santee River, and the Savannah River. The Ohio Region includes only the Kanawha River, whereas, the Tennessee Region includes the Upper Tennessee River, and the Middle Tennessee and Hiwassee Rivers. Drainage area data are arranged according to the major order of streams listed above. A complete index of drainage area data, by hydrologic unit code and river basin, is summarized in table 1.

EXPLANATION OF TABULAR HEADINGS

In addition to drainage area, identification and location information are also provided for each site. Information provided includes: station number and name, drainage area, type of site, latitude and longitude, and the map and county where the site is located. An example heading for the tabular data is as follows:

STATION NUMBER	STATION NAME	DRAINAGE AREA (SQ MI)	SITE TYPE	LAT	LONG	QUAD NAME	COUNTY CODE
0205308490	CORDUROY SWP AT SR 1341 NR GALATIA	22.8	20	362821	771530	GALATIA	131
0205308500	CORDUROY SWP AT MTH NR PENDLETON	25.7	20	362903	771415	CONWAY	131
0205308520	KIRBYS C AB TRIB AT PENDLETON	46.7	20	362759	771256	CONWAY	131

An explanation of each type of information provided is discussed below.

Station Number.--Site data are presented according to station number. Beginning in 1950, the order of listing data collection stations in Geological Survey reports is in the downstream direction, along the main stem. A unique 8-digit number is assigned to each station such that they increased in downstream order. Therefore, station numbers for sites on a tributary, upstream from a main-stem site, are smaller than the station numbers for the main-stem site. Similarily, station numbers for sites on a tributary that enters between two main-stem sites, falls between station numbers for the two main-stem sites. Intervening station numbers are frequently reserved for sites to be established at a later time.

Unfortunately, the system of 8-digit station numbers is not adequate to accomodate all of the new sites covered by this report; therefore, all 8-digit station numbers were expanded to 10 digits. For older sites, two zeros were added to the end of the station number; newer sites were assigned 10-digit station numbers. Some station numbers were revised and supersede those found in Walker (1965) and other Survey publications.

Station Name.--The station name relates the site to a nearby city or town or other physical feature. To avoid confusion between sites that would ordinarily have the same name, a secondary landmark, such as a numbered highway, is occasionally added for clarity. Names of streams used are those shown on the most current (1982) topographic maps of the Geological Survey. Names of existing or former sites were not changed in this report. Standard abbreviations used in site names are listed in table 2.

Drainage Area.--Drainage areas for sites listed in this report are the most accurate values available by the Geological Survey. The areas, in square miles, were rounded using the following criteria:

0.01 square mile for areas less than 10 square miles;
0.1 square mile for areas 10 to 99.9 square miles; and
1 square mile for areas 100 square miles or greater.

Site Type Code.--A 2-digit code was used to indicate the type and frequency of data collection at the site. Code numbers used in this report are as follows:

01 - Continuous record streamflow station;
02 - Low-flow partial-record streamflow station;
03 - Crest stage (high flow) partial-record streamflow station;
11 - Primary and secondary quality of water monitoring stations having periodic streamflow data; and,
20 - Estimates only -- no streamflow or other hydrologic data available.

Latitude and longitude.--Site location coordinates of latitude and longitude are expressed in degrees, minutes, and seconds as scaled from Geological Survey topographic quadrangle maps. In the tabular listing, unit symbols have been deleted for lack of space. For example, a 6-digit latitude value of 36° 31' 20" is expressed as 363120.

Quad name.--The Geological Survey topographic quadrangle map, on which the site is located, is indicated. By April 1982, quadrangle maps were available for approximately 98 percent of the State. Of the 1,051 quadrangle maps available, 1,036 are of the 7 1/2-minute series with a scale of 1:24,000. The 7 1/2-minute quadrangle maps have an accuracy standard equal to about 40 feet horizontally and one-half the contour interval vertically (Steger, 1978). Map contour intervals vary according to topographic conditions, but generally range from 5 feet in flat terrain, upwards towards 50 feet in mountain areas. Approximately 95 percent of the drainage areas provided in this report were determined from 7 1/2-minute maps. An index of topographic quadrangle maps for North Carolina is available upon request (U.S. Geological Survey, 1980).

County Code.--The political subdivision code has been adapted from "Counties and County Equivalents of the States of the United States" presented in Federal Information Processing Standards Publications 6-2, issued by the National Bureau of Standards (1973); each county or county equivalent is identified by a 3-character county code. A list of North Carolina counties and corresponding codes is provided in table 3.

SUMMARY

This report provides a tabulation of current drainage area data for more than 12,400 selected sites on streams in North Carolina. These data were determined as part of various hydrologic studies and investigations conducted by the U.S. Geological Survey and the Tennessee Valley Authority (Tennessee River Basin) in North Carolina. Additional information provided for each site includes site number and name, latitude and longitude, county in which the site lies, and quadrangle map on which the site is located. Sites are listed in downstream order by basin within each of the three hydrologic regions of the State. Drainage area values provided for sites listed in this report, supersede all previous values published by the U.S. Geological Survey.
