

Figure 9. Cadmium, which is in lower than average concentrations for this data set, does show a strong relationship with zinc, where it frequently occurs as a solid solution in zinc sulfides. Gallium, which is in high concentration in this sample set, shows an atypical low correlation with zinc. Such correlations are normally stronger in enriched concentrations.