

(200)
R290
m. 78-412

Figure 12.--View of the San Carlos Reservoir looking west.
The San Carlos River enters the reservoir at the right center of the photograph, forming a fan sloping from right to left. The Gila River inflow channel has migrated from right to left, as the fan developed, leaving the outlines of numerous channels. Reservoir elevation was 2,419 feet above mean sea level. Photographed April 20, 1965.