A large number of different samples are collected in each time or to time point arrangement. The results for the entire period of the experiment are analyzed to determine the best time point. The data is then compared to the results from the previous time points to determine the best time point. The data is then compared to the results from the previous time points to determine the best time point.