This map and accompanying description of deposits provide information on the locations of various mineral deposits in the Petersburg and Eastern Port Alexander quadrangles of southeastern Alaska. The term "deposits" as used in this report primarily refers to those deposits that are currently mineable. However, other deposits that are not currently mineable may also be included. The data used to compile this map was obtained from various sources, including published reports, unpublised reports, and field observations. This map is intended to provide a general overview of the mineral deposits in the area and should not be used for detailed mineral exploration. The map is not intended to be a substitute for more detailed studies or surveys. It is hoped that this map will be useful to geologists, mineral explorers, and other interested parties to the study of mineral deposits in southeastern Alaska.
