

Fig. 8- Cultivated debris fans on the lower slopes (elevation 2400-2800 ft) of Cherokee Orchard (view is to the southwest, ca. 1950)(Hadley and Goldsmith, 1963). See Hadley and Goldsmith (1963, fig. 45B, p. B109) for a photograph showing an excavation of the same boulder debris deposit (diamicton of large metasandstone boulders supported in a fine matrix) in the town of Gatlinburg.