

Figure 10.6C. Results of the incubation of fine-grained particles that were resuspended at a shear stress of 0.3 N/m^2 during a Hingham Bay experiment. Red symbols show the increase in dissolved Cu over time after the particles were diluted with local bottom water to a concentration of 100 mg/l and incubated at in situ temperature. Blue symbols are a filtered control sample.