

EXPLANATION

- G Gamma-ray log
- R Electrical-resistivity log
- SP Electrical-spontaneous-potential log

The distance of the trace of a log from its base line is an indication of the type of material penetrated. A trace close to the base line indicates relatively fine grained sediments such as clay, silt, or sandy clay; a trace that diverges from the base line indicates coarser material such as sand or gravel

GEOLOGIC SECTION C-C' ACROSS THE CENTRAL SEVIER VALLEY, UTAH

